Remember Who You Are

So, magnificent child of the Divine creator, what is your creative and powerful mind creating? Do you realize how incredibly effective you are in creating each and every aspect of your life? Have you considered how the powers that want to be have used your energy and attention to create situations that you don't want? Would you like to know how to undo that monstrosity and create something empowering, life affirming and wonderful for not just yourself but for all that want it? Well then lets proceed with an open mind....

If you consider that everything created is done with flawless accuracy as you would expect from a Divine source. Even our biology shows that when our frequency, also known as our emotions, is in a loving, appreciative, joyful, purposeful and passionate state we are making compounds, hormones and chemicals that heal. Whenever we are in a lower frequency we are damaging our bodies physically. There is no debate about that. It is also known that our affect on others and their affect on us is not limited to what is seen. What if our ability to change the world depends on our ability to change ourselves. What if we are most effective co-creators when we are aligned with the Divine.

How we see ourselves affects how we see others and how they react to us. Our beliefs about the world become self-fulfilling prophecies and our experiences further solidify our beliefs. If that belief is empowering then great but if it isn't it may be time to weed your garden of co-creation of limiting beliefs. The worst that could happen is that you will feel better and facilitate others to feel better and be empowered. What actually will happen is you will change the world, yours and everyone who wants that change.

What gets in our way is we forgot who we are and how to make changes in our world with ease. The Divine has no intention for us to struggle, that is all our doing. Obviously we have been inundated with information to the contrary as the powers that want to be want us divided and disempowered so they can control our ability to create for their own purposes. It is time for us to wake up and return to our full expression of who we are.

So take stock of what your inner dialogue is about yourself, others and the world. Take stock of where your frequency hovers most often. Most of the time you are responding to the world, your life, your self in habituated responses that seem out of your control. Like any bad habit, it will take some attention and awareness and gentle self correction.

What you say about a situation is just your perception seen through the lens of all your subconscious beliefs. Any limitation you think you have or others have or the world has is based on those beliefs. You can't really affect change in anything until you have changed within. The wonderful thing about that is that when you change within, the outer world will also change. You just have to know this and see past the shadows that linger while the new is lined up.

The problem most have is that they fold when the outer world doesn't respond as fast as they want and return to limiting beliefs. A very easy thing to do and its familiar and nothing changes. Change seems to be a scary thing even when the situation is toxic. The familiar has a great pull. The irony is that everything changes all the time. Why not change it to what you want instead of allowing a mass collective asleep at the wheel change things for the powers that be.

You may say that one person can't change the world, yet history shows it has only been a handful of people that made many changes for everyone. One person in alignment with the Divine is more powerful than millions of people. If you don't think this could be true then just the health benefit alone is worth the effort. You will also find that you become more effective in influencing people around you as well.

Taking stock of your mind garden is actually a wonderful way to change your life from the very beginning. Since you can't assess every thought you have during the day (estimated to be 60,000 plus), the Divine gave you emotions for a very specific purpose. When they are positive you are healing and co-creating effectively and when they are negative you are damaging your body and adding power to that which you don't want. So when you have a negative emotion that is your sign to look within for beliefs that don't serve you and change them. Ask yourself "What must I believe about myself, others or these circumstances to choose this emotion?". It is a choice just a habituated one. Then ask "What could I believe instead that feels better?".

This doesn't mean we don't see negative things we would like to change however once seen we begin to focus on what we can do to change it and if we can't we give the Divine our order and release it knowing it will be done. The line is "ask and it is given" not ask and "do x,y,z and maybe it will be given". If you haven't seen miracles in your own life yet, know that they have occurred and you missed them. You will start to see them more and more.

A wise man in our group asked us to to state our intention and then add but and truthfully state all our reasons why we think it isn't happening. Then rework the negative reasons into positive affirmations in the present tense. Engender the feelings you would have if the positive affirmations are now and happening. Every time you slip back into the doubt, discouragement or frustration, reaffirm the new reality you envisioned and do your best to feel it is just that. This is truly powerful and how to align with your Divine intentions.

For more guidance or elaboration just ask with clarity and a willingness to hear. The Divine always answers and the answers are always wonderful. We have just been conditioned to expect difficulty. The irony (and yes, another irony) is that who we are is so powerful that any instruction from the Divine will easily lead us to that unless we believe it has to be difficult.

In conclusion, you are loved beyond your wildest imagination and more powerful than you could possibly fully understand. Step into your inheritance and enjoy the empowered free world that is now waiting for us.

A Call to Action

Data Collection Centers in Pennsylvania

Data Collection Centers are one of Pennsylvania's hot subjects this year, thus far. There are many counties and townships which are targeted for the building of these centers. We, as Pennsylvanians, are taking notice and standing up to speak out.

What are we saying?

"Data collection is unlawful . . ."

. . . because We the People are often uninformed about what information is being harvested for the government's uses and we gave no informed consent.

. . . because it is a theft of great proportion, and this theft is to our harm. It is causing current harm and predicatively, to cause much more harm in the future.

"We did not agree for our land to be encumbered with such large construction projects."

- In some cases the centers are to be built where existing large structures are/had been and some regulatory zoning steps are being skipped.

- A lot of land is required for each center, and in many cases, pristine land is being selected for use.
- Often, the people are not given adequate information before hand, in order to have a voice in the plans.

“We don’t want our land, air, and water to be polluted.”

- The land needs to absorb contamination from the wastes of batteries and computer chips used in the data storage process. This encumbers that land for many years.
- The water used to cool down the many computers, is contaminated by the heavy metals and other wastes associated with the operation of hundreds of computers. In many cases this water is returned to the water ways without being thoroughly purified.
- The air absorbs the exhaust of large generators needed to provide back-up energy for the big operation. The particulates emitted cause/worsen respiratory issues of those living in the neighborhood. Dust is increased due to construction, construction materials, and increased industrial traffic.

“The EMF emissions burden an already burdened environment.”

- The EMF ratings from Data Collection Centers are expected to exceed the emissions from cell towers, 5-G towers, or smart meters.
- EMFs trigger stress to the body’s tissues.
- EMFs cause symptoms like fatigue, headache, decreased learning ability, and cognitive impairment.

“We don’t want indirect repercussions, like . . . “

- . . .land burdened and compacted by large slabs of cement.
- . . . lower property value near the data centers.
- . . . rising water costs.
- . . . rising energy costs.

We, the People of Pennsylvania, are unifying to take action.

What are we doing?

We are paying attention to where plans are being made for Data Collection Centers.

We are actively doing research to understand what all is planned and what is involved with these centers coming to our townships and counties.

We are preparing to address local public servants about their responsibilities to keep us safe and to be law abiding.

We are inviting you to join us, by . . .

. . . doing research to add to ours, so we can help each other with important information to take to our local public servants. Please send the results of your research to pennsylvaniapioneers@protonmail.com . Also, use this email address if you wish for assistance in holding your county officials accountable.

. . . looking forward to the March issue of Pennsylvania Free State Newsletter where you will find the results of research presently being done, so you can be armed with pertinent information.

. . . helping us stop this great trespass against us!

Thank you so much for speaking, taking action, and bringing freedom to Pennsylvania!!

Sincerely, by:karen-sue: sensenig.
